For almost 80 years, Swagelok unparalleled technical know-how has made customers around the world – especially when encountering the most challenging applications – safer, more productive, and more profitable.

SMALL MOLECULE, BIG IMPACT:

Leading the Way for Green Hydrogen Production

Another recent example of how Swagelok total system solutions made a genuine Bottom Line difference beyond just the supply of premium, leak-tight componentry:

A major Energy account faced a huge task: Expand its Hydrogen production and storage capabilities while containing and compressing the element's extremely small molecules under pressure – all while making the Hydrogen completely from renewable resources and then preserving it for later use, unlike the possibilities for other forms of green energy.

After Swagelok Field Engineers visited and collaborated closely on potential system design improvements with the site's technicians, including a thorough audit of the facility's existing setup, Swagelok FK medium/high-pressure, simple-to-install and maintain, high nickel content tube fittings were employed in tandem with our customized needle and ball valves.

RESULTS:

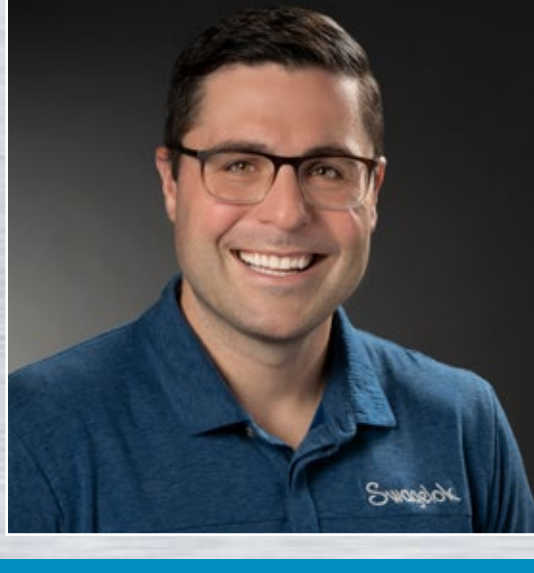

Substantial labor time and costs were saved; superior efficiency and overall performance delivered...as our customer continued its passionate and aggressive journey to help the globe transition to a more sustainable future!

We can help you safely and swiftly surpass your operational goals.
